WALT DISNEY WORLD

is a tribute to the philosophy and life of

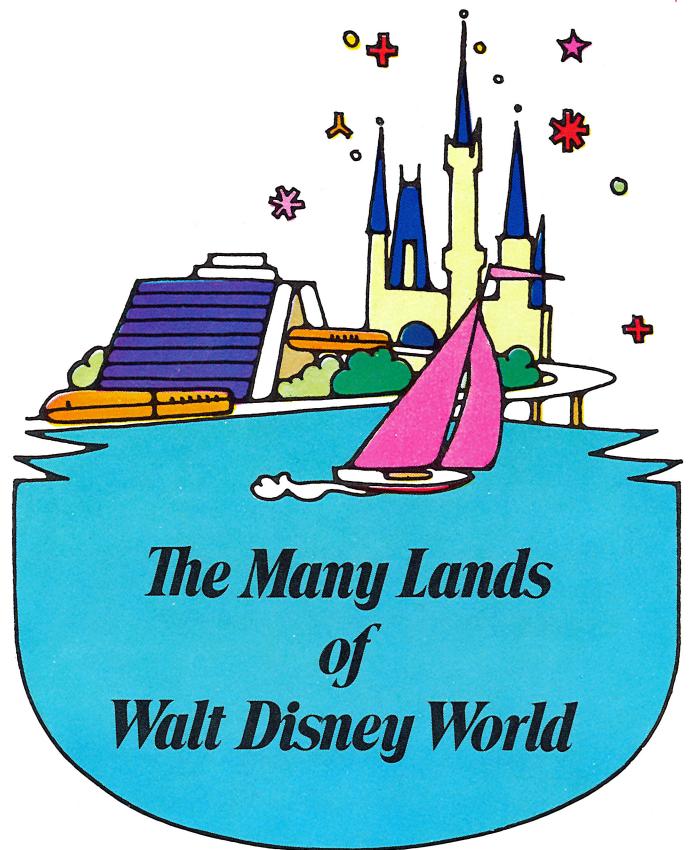

Walter Elias Disney

...and to the talents, the dedication, and the loyalty of the entire Disney organization that made Walt Disney's dream come true. May Walt Disney World bring Joy and Inspiration and New Knowledge to all who come to this happy place... a Magic Kingdom where the young at heart of all ages can laugh and play and learn — together.

Dedicated this 25th day of October, 1971

The Many Lands of Walt Disney World

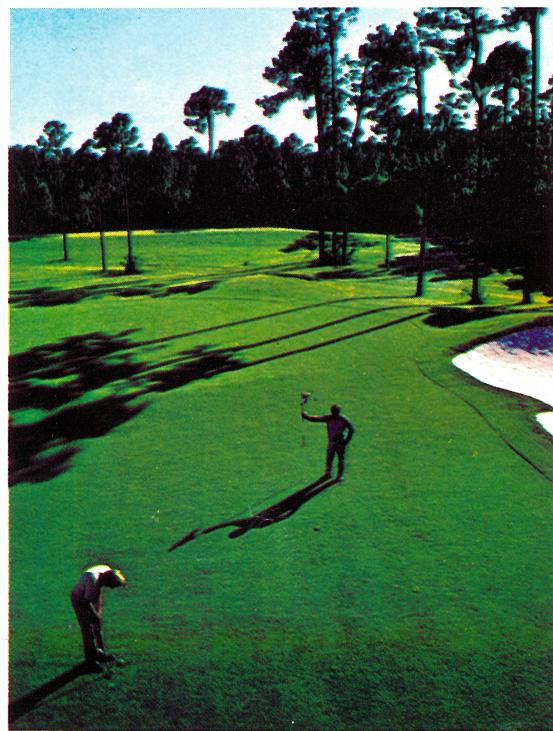

Fifteen miles southwest of Orlando, in the lake and forest country of central Florida, a new world of entertainment and recreation opened its gates in October, 1971.

Today, a visit to Walt Disney World is a voyage to many lands and times. Stroll through the Magic Kingdom, where the worlds of fantasy, yesterday and tomorrow "come to life" in six theme "lands." Join the luau under the palms of the Polynesian Village resort-hotel. Ride a swift monorail train to the Contemporary Resort—as contemporary as tomorrow. Stroll from your room to the first tee of a championship course at the Golf Resort Hotel. Follow the trail to the Fort Wilderness campgrounds, nestled among the tall cypress and pine.

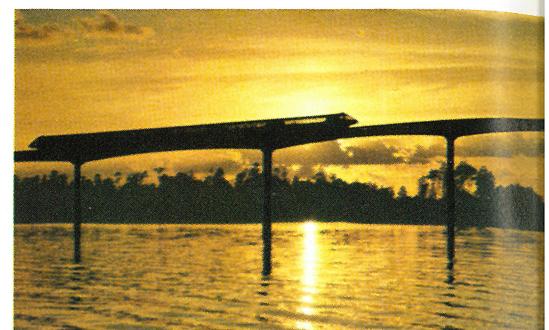

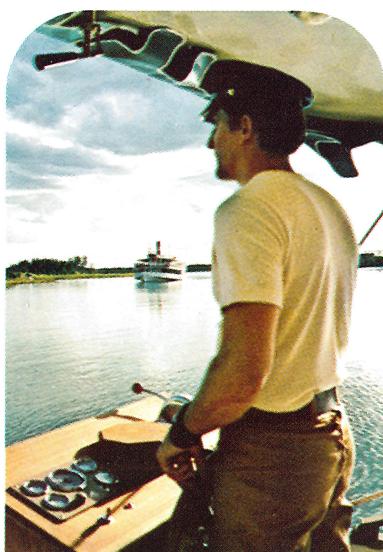

Walt Disney World is a new kind of vacation experience—The Vacation Kingdom of the World. You can visit here for the day, or better yet, plan to stay for an entire vacation. There's a holiday-full of things to do and places to go, all together for the first time in The Many Lands of Walt Disney World.

A sample whirl of activities at Walt Disney World: Watching the fireworks burst over the dramatic Contemporary Resort every summer evening . . . sailing over miles of blue lake and lagoon . . . spinning in a teacup in the Magic Kingdom's Fantasyland . . . shopping "in the islands" at the Polynesian Village resort . . . dancing at the Contemporary Resort's "Top of the World" restaurant . . . living in the outdoors at the unique Fort Wilderness Campground Resort . . . and basking in the Florida sun along white-sand beaches.

Tomorrow and yesterday: Monorail trains leave the station inside the Contemporary Resort and emerge 50 feet in the air, on the "highway in the sky" . . . Traditional-style American ferry boats make the mile journey from main entrance to Magic Kingdom in less than 10 minutes . . . Side-wheel steamboats Ports O' Call and Southern Seas (opposite page) have "walking beam" engines unlike any built in 100 years.

"Getting there," or rather getting around after getting there, is half the fun at Walt Disney World.

At the main entrance, visitors leave their cars for the day and board monorail trains, motor trams, and old-fashioned steamboats and ferry boats for the one-mile journey over or around the Seven Seas Lagoon to the Magic Kingdom. The boats and monorails are designed not only for show and flow, but also—in the monorails' case—to demonstrate today a transportation system of tomorrow.

Guests staying overnight in the Vacation Kingdom also leave their cars parked; monorails stop at the Polynesian Village and Contemporary Resort every few minutes, and the smaller Voyager boats (previous page) travel to and from the Fort Wilderness campgrounds.

But getting there is only part of the fun. The real excitement begins when monorail and boat arrive at the entrance to . . .

THE MAGIC KINGDOM

Main Street, U.S.A.

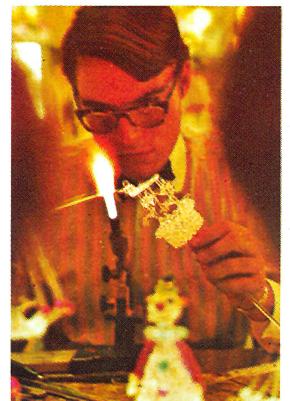

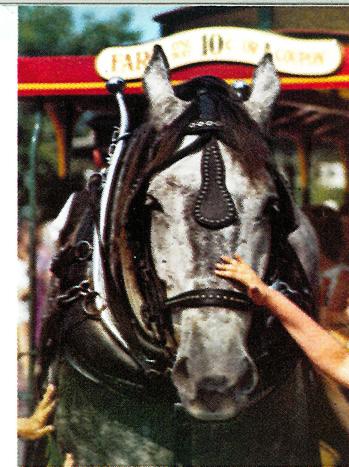

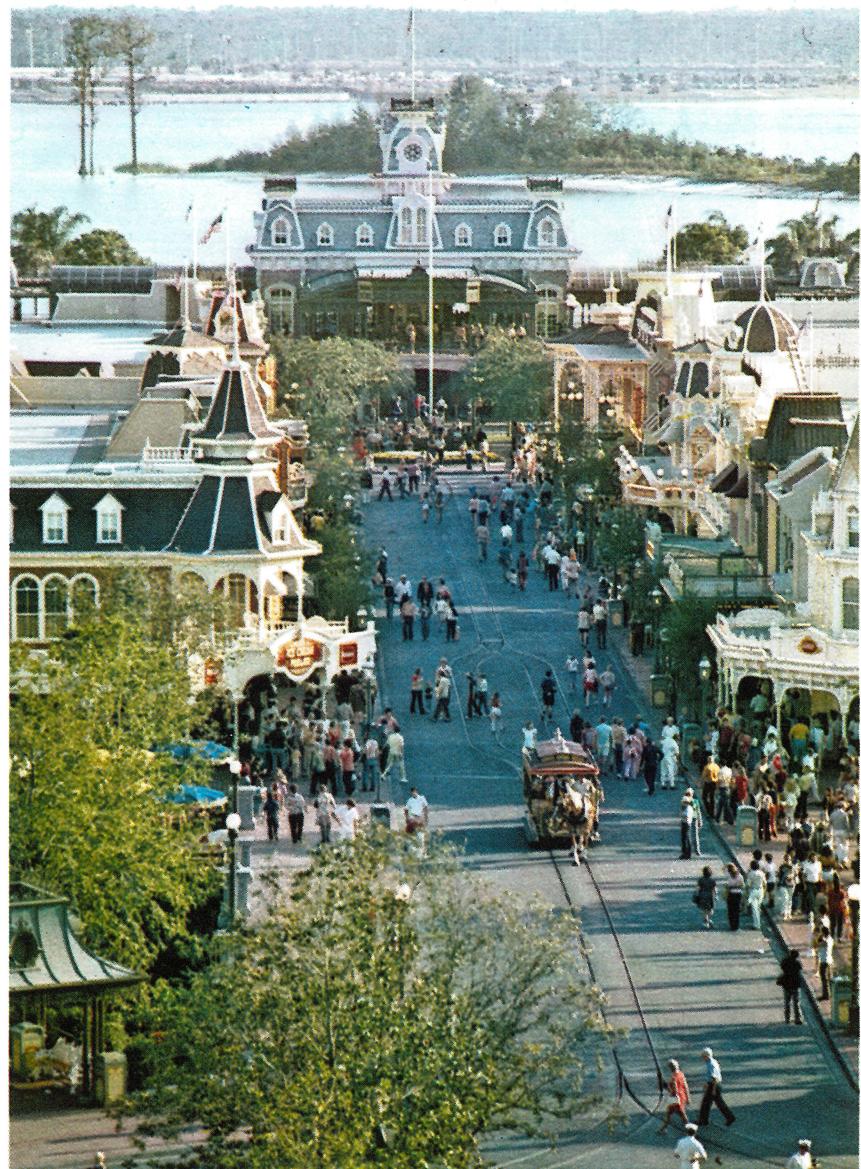

Turn back the clock to the turn-of-the-century on Main Street, U.S.A., the first of six main areas or "lands" that make up the Magic Kingdom.

Main Street was the heartline of America in 1890-1910.

Here was the crossroads of an era: The gas lamp giving way to the electric light, the sputtering "horseless carriage" challenging Old Dobbin for the streetcar right-of-way.

Walt Disney was a "main streeter" of the times; it was his concept that Main Street, U.S.A. should "bring back happy memories for those who remember the carefree times it recreates." As horse-drawn streetcars and motorized jitneys pass, visitors browse in the Emporium or Market House; watch artisans at work in the glassware shop and silhouette studio; dine in the elegant Crystal Palace; and relive the days of silent films and penny arcades.

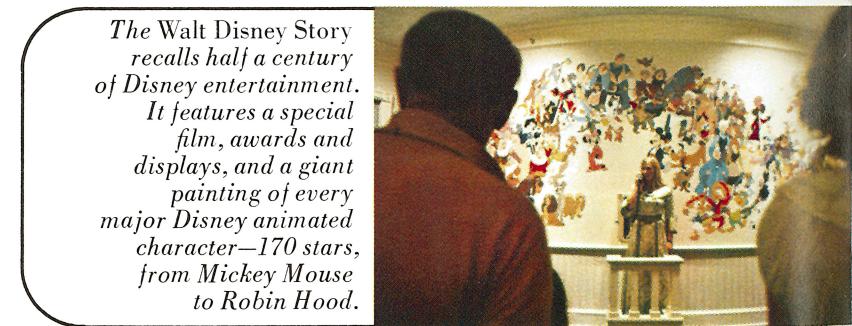

Marching bands, parades and other pageants are part of Main Street too . . . for here, the era of the small home town, circa 1900, lives again.

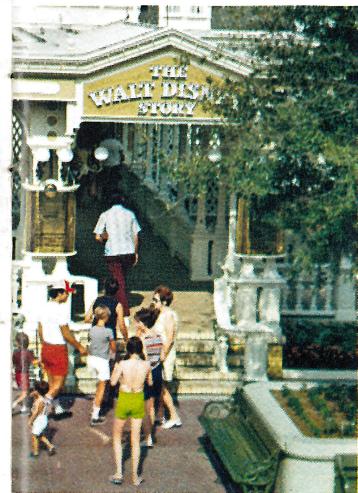

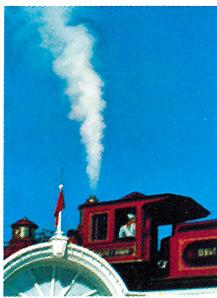

Visitors walk or ride down Main Street aboard horse-drawn streetcars, jitneys, "horseless carriages" and double-deck busses, passing City Hall, shops, stores and the Cinema. All are designed after the fashion of eastern seaboard Victorian, at the turn of the century.

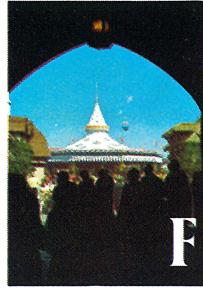

The Walt Disney Story recalls half a century of Disney entertainment. It features a special film, awards and displays, and a giant painting of every major Disney animated character—170 stars, from Mickey Mouse to Robin Hood.

Dining at the Crystal Palace restaurant, located along the Plaza Canal where graceful Swan Boats sail, is an adventure in Grand Victorian pleasure. Domed skylights, indoor trees and plants, and crystal chandeliers complement the mood of elegant-but-casual dining.

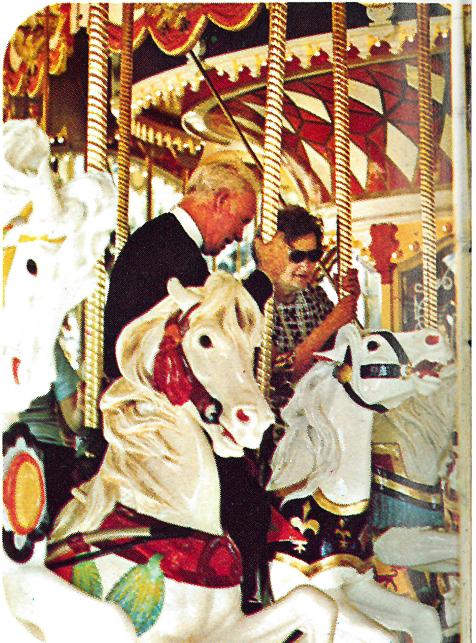

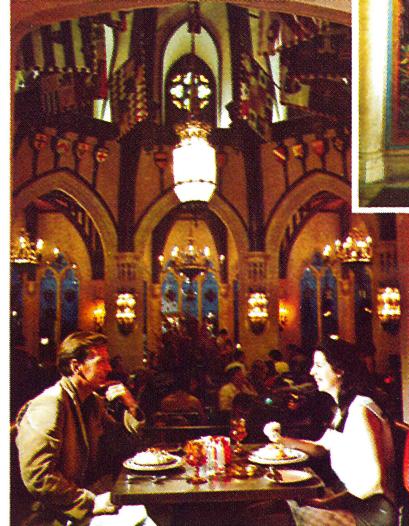

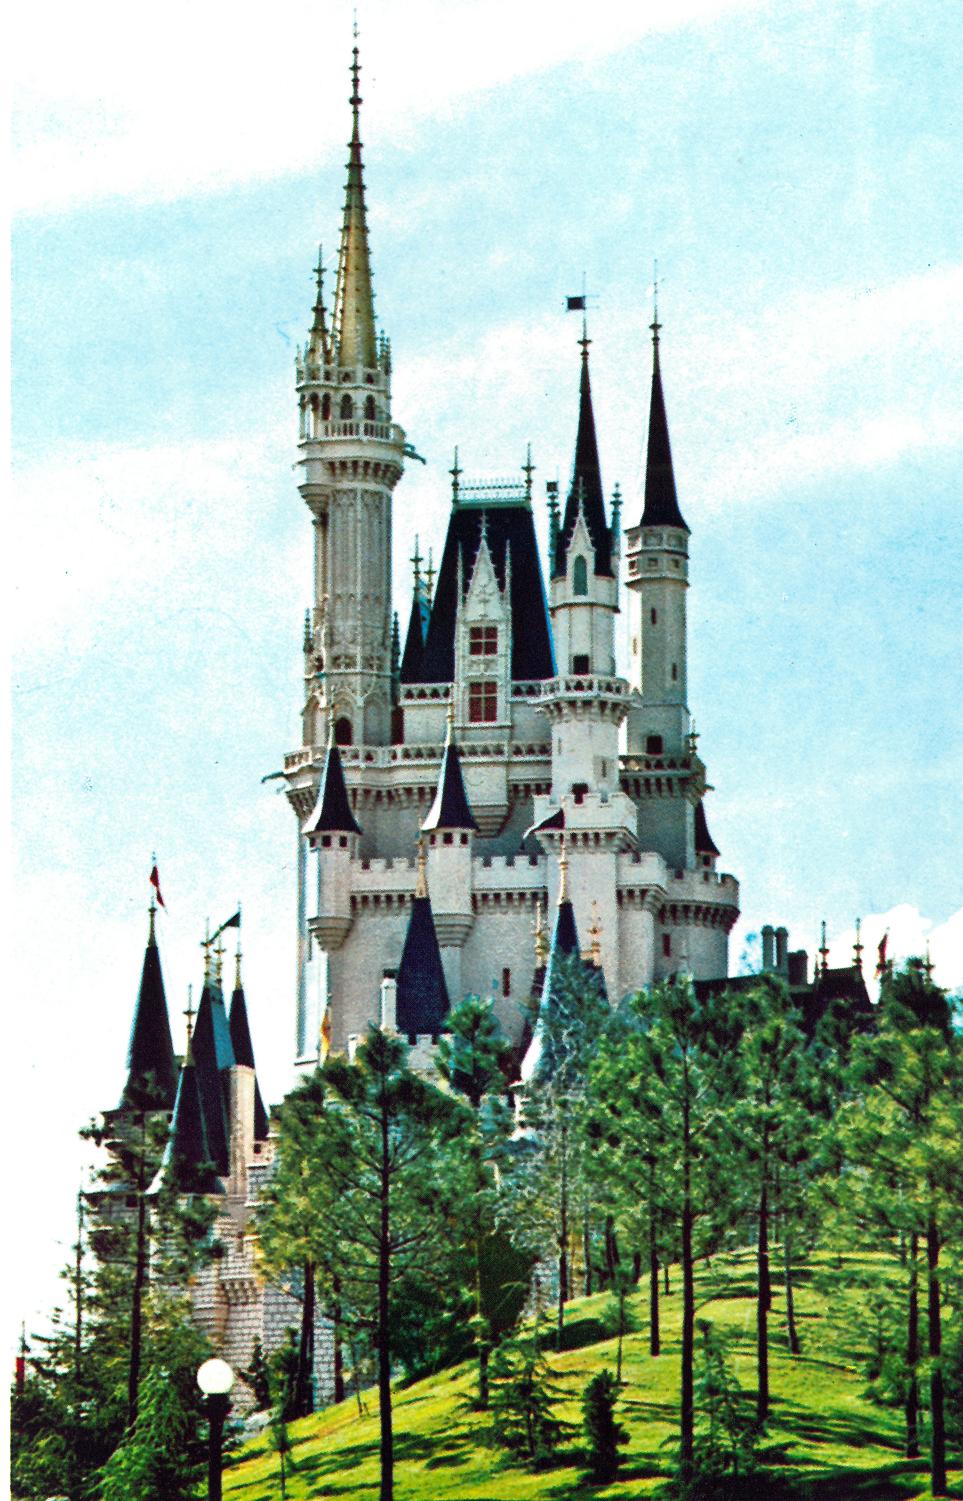

Fantasyland

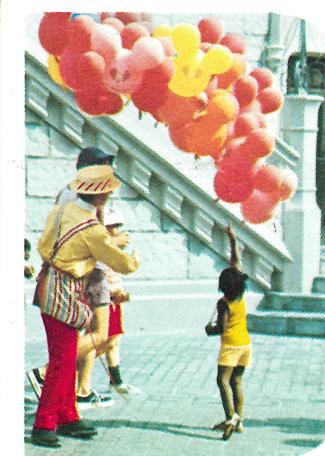

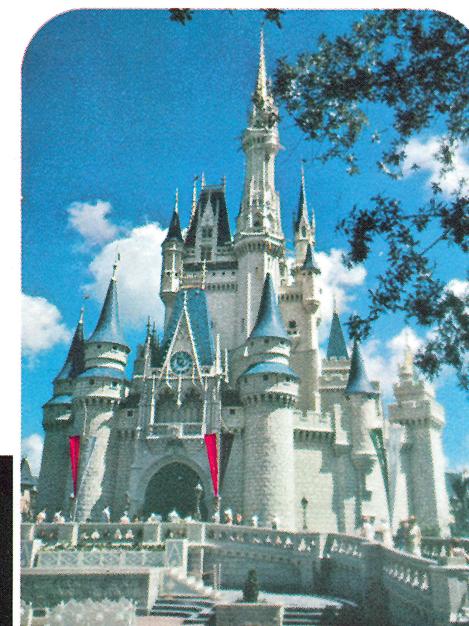

"The happiest kingdom of them all" is the world within the courtyard of the beautiful Cinderella Castle. In Fantasyland, classic stories of childhood "come to life"—a flight with Peter Pan, a journey with Snow White through the Dark Forest, a wild auto ride with Mr. Toad.

Here too are tales that are pure Disney. In the Mickey Mouse Revue, a stage-full of Disney characters play and sing songs the whole world loves, while nearby another tune—It's A Small World—follows passengers on "the happiest cruise that ever sailed."

As Walt Disney said, "The time you spend in this gay and carefree kingdom will be a dream come true—for everyone who is young in heart."

Towering high above the Magic Kingdom is Cinderella Castle, a classic Renaissance palace-fortress of the 12th and 13th centuries. Inside, guests dine at King Stefan's Banquet Hall. Glass mosaic murals tell the fairy tale of Cinderella.

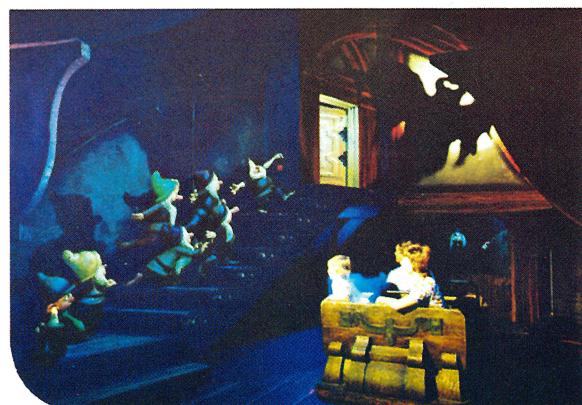

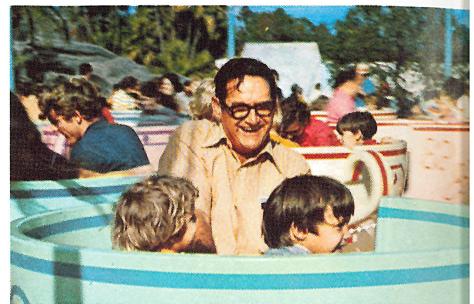

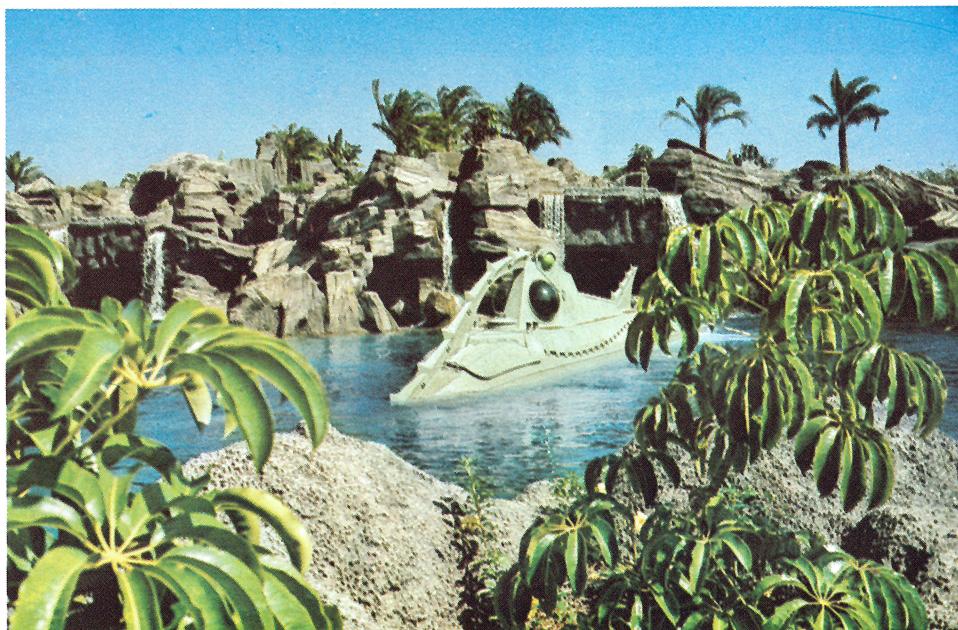

The child in us all awakens ... soaring high above Fantasyland aboard Dumbo the elephant and the lofty Skyway ... or prancing to a calliope tune on Cinderella's Golden Carousel.

Themes of Fantasyland's attractions range from the dancing, singing children of It's A Small World, to classic Disney films and their characters—Mr. Toad's Wild Ride, Mad Tea Party, Mickey Mouse Revue, Snow White's Adventures, Peter Pan's Flight. And the fabulous world of the ocean's depths, viewed 20,000 Leagues Under the Sea through the portholes of Captain Nemo's submarine.

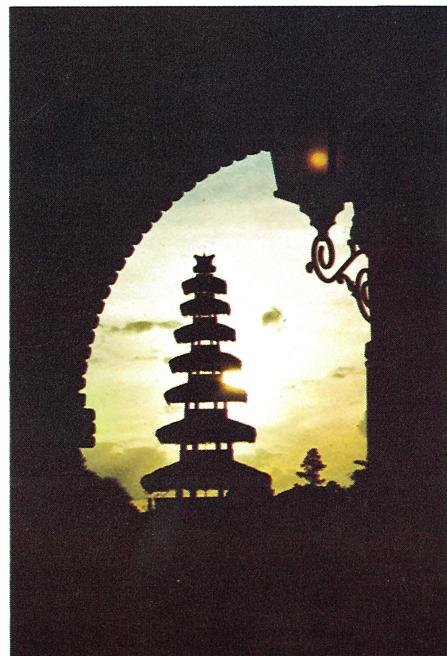

A dventureland

A journey to exotic tropic regions of the world unfolds in Adventureland, where the last outpost of civilization borders on "a wonderland of nature's own design."

On the famous Jungle Cruise, explorers travel down mysterious rivers of the world to encounter charging hippos deep in the Congo, and playful elephants in their sacred bathing pool. Colorful plants and flowers grow to the water's edge, and adventure lurks around every bend—a safari camp overrun by giant gorillas, an ancient Asian shrine guarded by chattering monkeys and hissing cobras, a pride of lions feasting among the animals of the great African Veldt.

Ashore, the tin and tile roofs of Adventureland shelter the small shops of the Bazaar, offering imports from tropic regions of the globe. And in the Sunshine Pavilion, birds sing and Tikis chant in a charming show, Tropical Serenade.

An explorer's launch steams down the river and behind a waterfall in the Jungle Cruise. Nearby, a steel band plays, and a hostess "wakes up" Jose—one of the star personalities of the Tropical Serenade show.

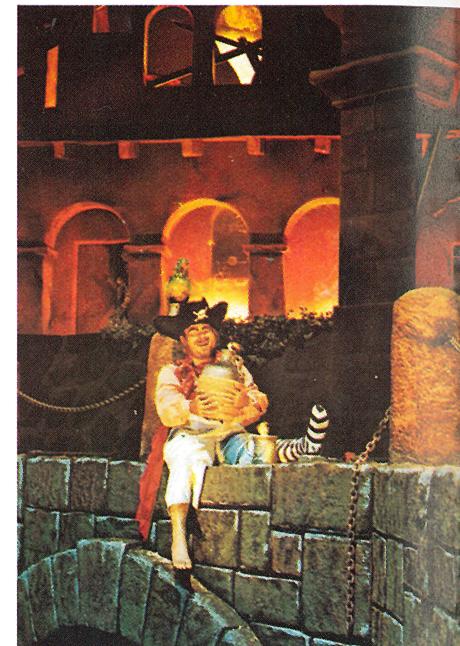

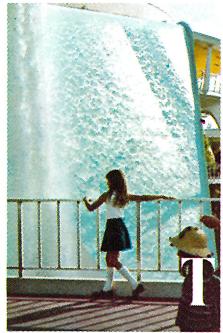

Crossing the bridge and climbing the Swiss Family Treehouse, adventurers gain a spectacular panorama of the sprawling jungle region. Below, bargain hunters browse through informal tropical shops.

Caribbean Plaza in Adventureland is the gateway to the swash-buckling adventure, PIRATES OF THE CARIBBEAN. Aboard flat-bottom bateaux, guests cruise from a Spanish-colonial town through sea grottos, emerging in a Caribbean harbor under attack by a pirate galleon. Bold buccaneers capture the town's defenders, auction their fair maidens, loot the village, and then—in one of the most spectacular climaxes to any adventure—they turn the whole town into a raging inferno.

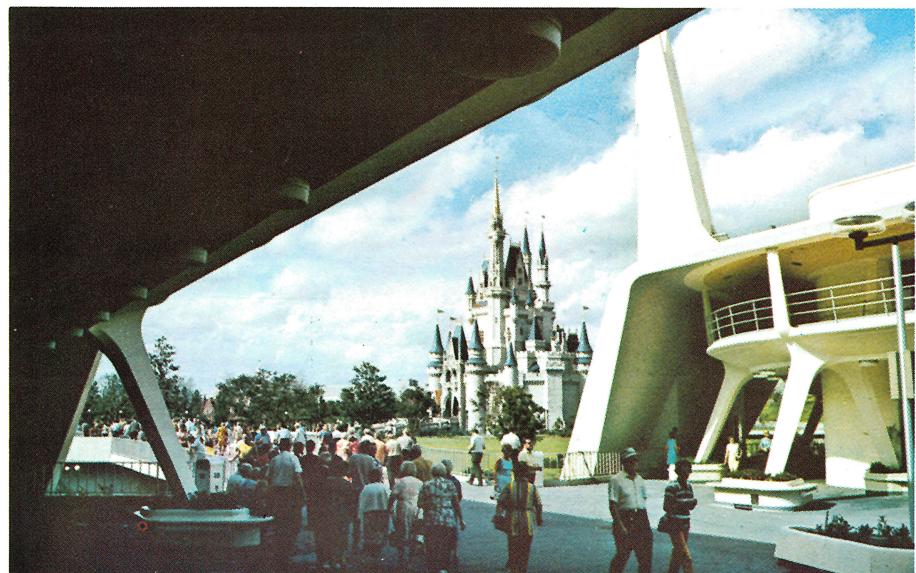

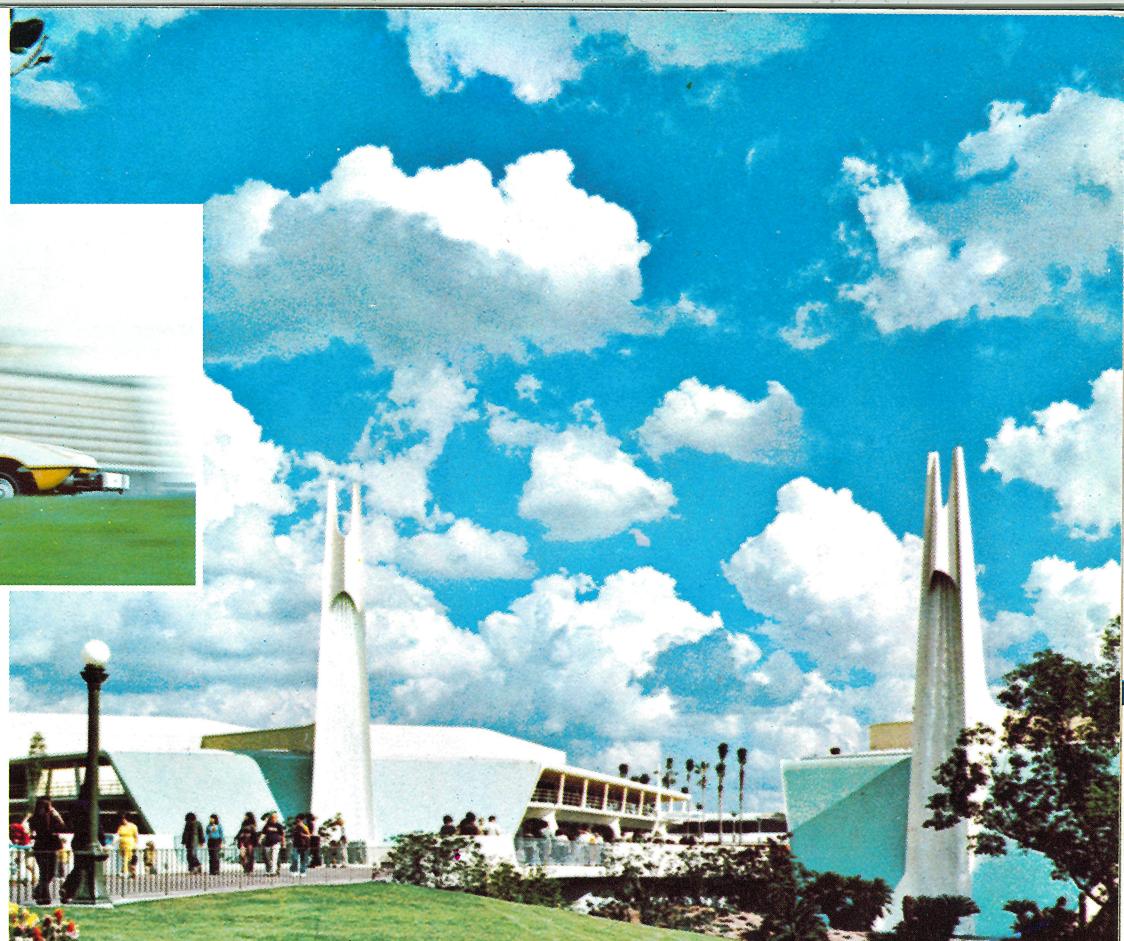

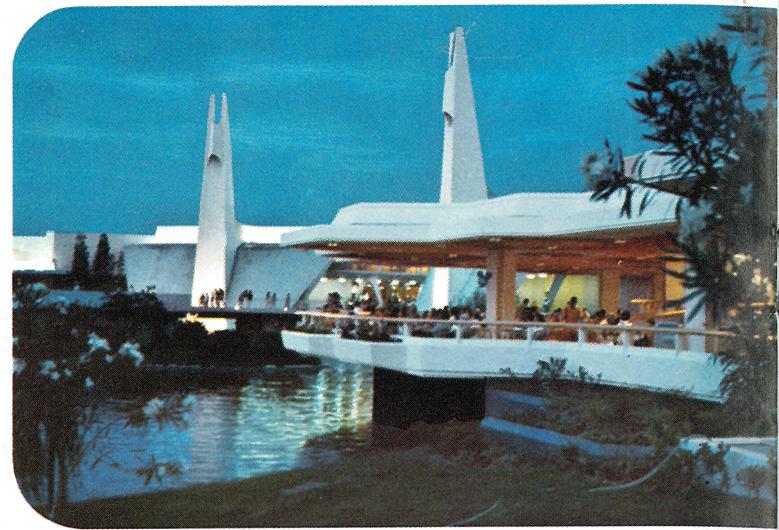

Tomorrowland

Man is on the move in Tomorrowland—across America, around our world, and beyond the Earth into outer space.

In its present and future adventures, Tomorrowland is an ongoing experience. "Blast off" on a Flight to the Moon. Surround yourself with the beauty of distant places in Circle-Vision 360. Travel to vacation ports-of-call through the magic of If You Had Wings. Take the wheel of an authentic, scale-size Grand Prix car to "compete" along winding roadways.

For youngsters of all ages, Tomorrowland is a stepping-stone to the future . . . an opportunity today to preview many adventures which only yesterday seemed generations away.

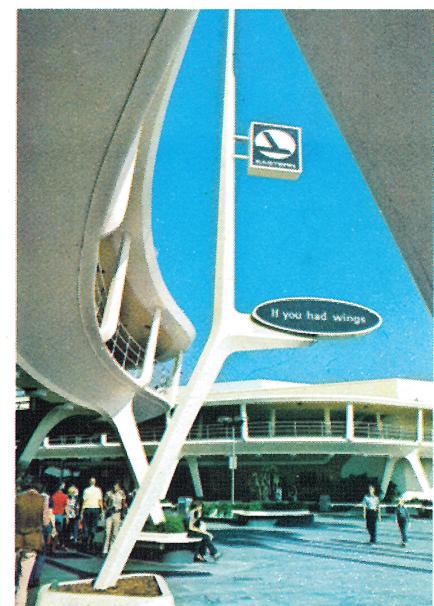

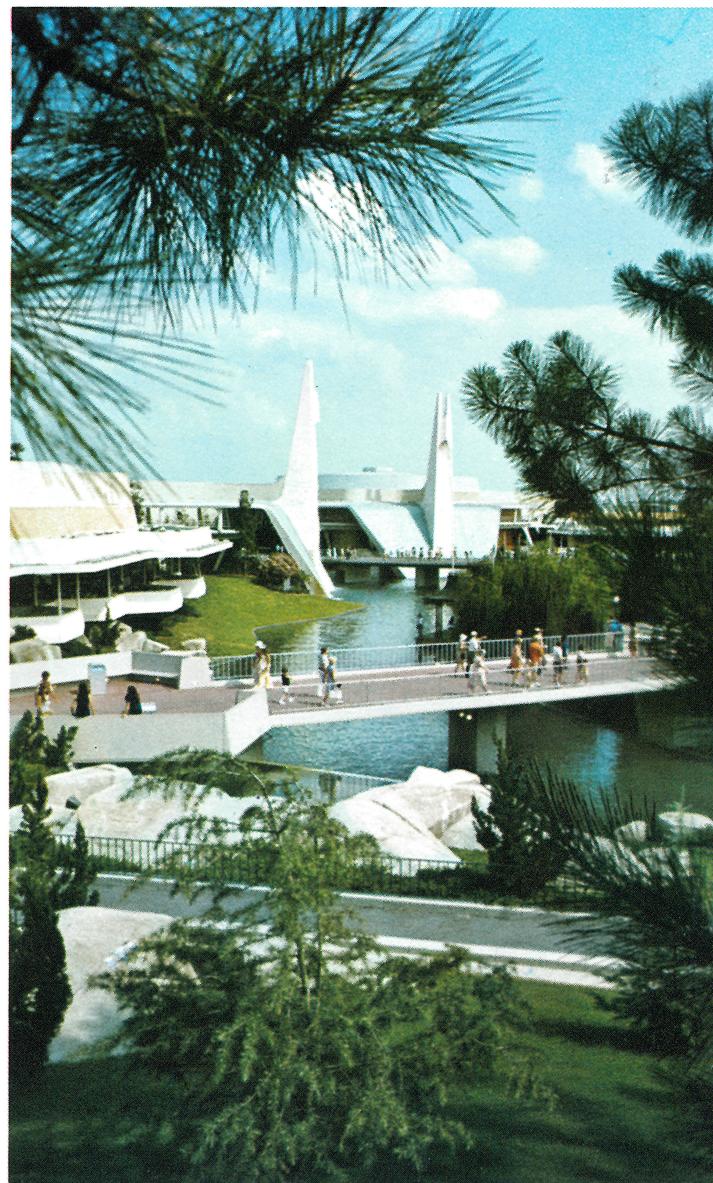

Space explorers boarding the Flight to the Moon first visit the Mission Control center, then are seated in the space ship to feel the sensations and see the distant sights beyond Earth orbit. Nearby, Circle-Vision 360 surrounds you in sight and sound, and Grand Prix race cars sometimes race . . . a steam train!

The sounds and sights of Tomorrowland are sometimes young . . . and sometimes old. Viewed from the Tomorrowland Terrace, a youthful musical group entertains against one Tomorrowland panorama, while another—its main entrance—is often seen beyond the graceful bridges and peaceful waterways of the Magic Kingdom's central Plaza.

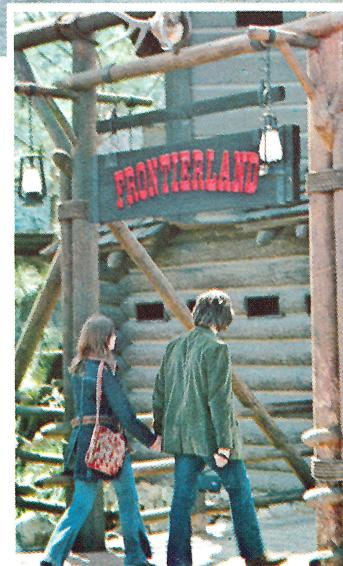

Frontierland

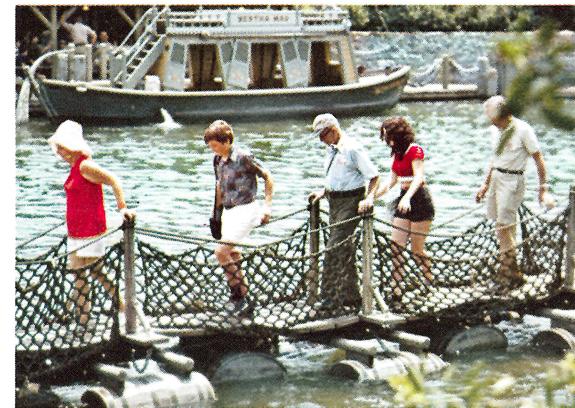

"All of us have cause to be proud of our country's history, shaped by the pioneering spirit of our forefathers. It is to those hardy pioneers, men of vision, faith and courage, that we have dedicated Frontierland."

These were Walt Disney's words for a land where you can blaze a river trail aboard a keel-boat or canoe of Davy Crockett's day. And you can see the true backwoods from the decks of the Admiral Joe Fowler and Richard F. Irvine—Mississippi stern-wheelers of Mark Twain's time.

Back on shore, the Mile Long Bar really looks . . . a mile long. And the wild West lives again in two stage shows—the rollicking Diamond Horseshoe Revue with its can-can dancers and comedians, and the zany Country Bear Jamboree, where the comics are wild, woolly—and fur-covered.

Frontierland will take you back in time, to a day when the pioneers moved westward to challenge the American frontier.

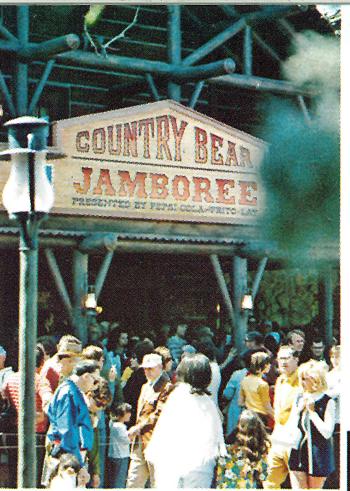

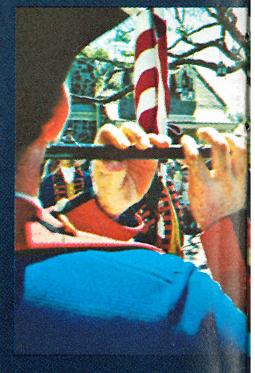

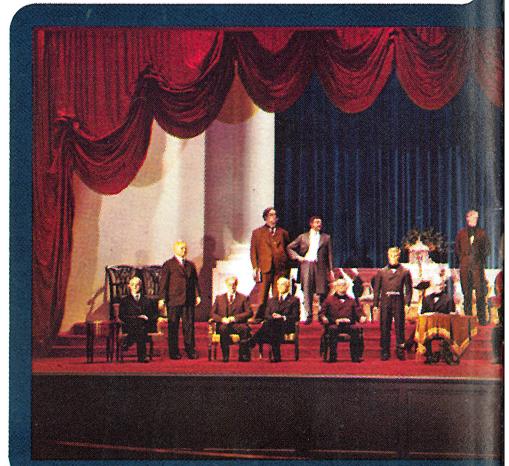

Youngsters of all ages enjoy Tom Sawyer Island, reached by log raft. The floating Barrel Bridge, Harper's Mill, the Magnetic Mystery Mine, Ft. Sam Clemens and Injun Joe's Cave await adventure-seekers.

Like many a pioneer settlement, the Magic Kingdom's realms of the distant past, Frontierland and Liberty Square, are built along the banks of the Rivers of America. High on a bluff overlooking the river is the gloomy granite Haunted Mansion, foreboding home of 999 restless ghouls, goblins and ghosts "dying" to meet you.

The wildest show in the wilderness is easily the Country Bear Jamboree. While the Five Bear Rugs, the Sunbonnets, and Gomer on piano play and sing center stage, the side boxes are filled with thousands of pounds of animated performers. Big Al's hillbilly rendition of "Blood on the Saddle" (below) is almost unbearable.

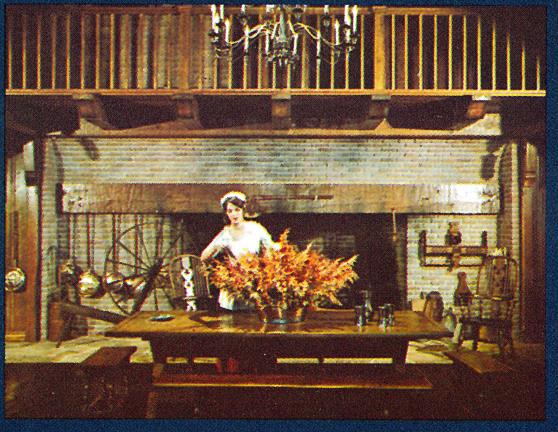

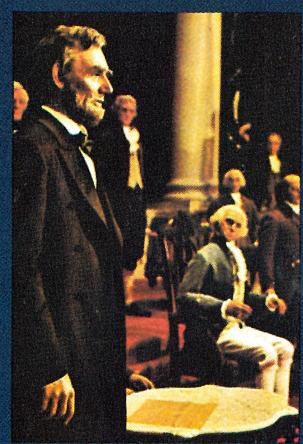

iberty Square

Here is America on the eve of Independence—1776. Around the bustling square are shops that recall the business life of Colonial America: silver, glass, Mlle. Lafayette's Parfumerie. And places to sample the hospitality of the times: Liberty Tree Tavern, Columbia Harbour House.

In Liberty Square, Walt Disney sought to dramatize "in a different and exciting way" the importance of our American heritage. This story, called One Nation Under God, is told in the Hall of Presidents, through the 36 men who led our nation from infancy. From these men, the free world may take new inspiration and hope, and new wisdom from old words of prophecy.

Inside the Hall of Presidents, the roll is called, and all 36 Presidents of the United States are gathered together on stage—life-size, life-like. Abraham Lincoln speaks for all... words as prophetic today as when first they were spoken more than a century ago.

POLYNESIAN VILLAGE

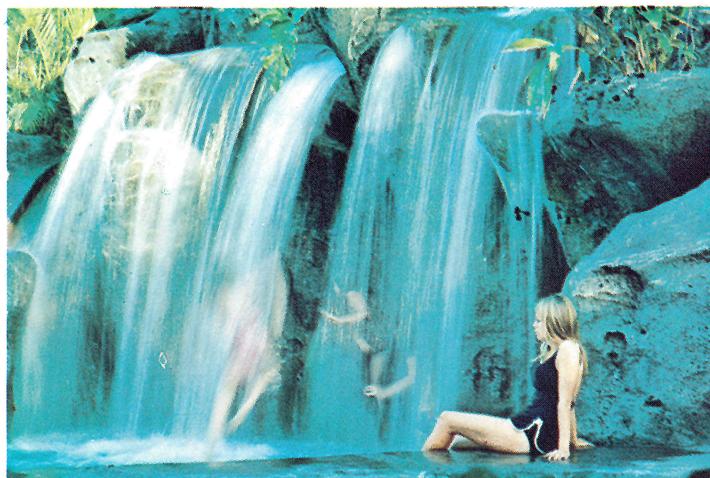

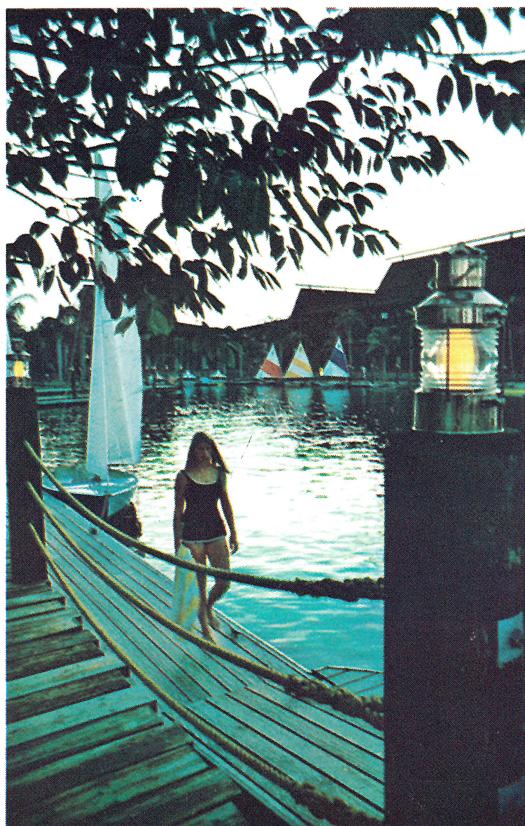

P olynesian Village

Across the Seven Seas Lagoon, the golden spires of Cinderella Castle call you to visit the Magic Kingdom. Yet it's difficult to leave your tropical "island of enchantment"— the Polynesian Village resort-hotel. For here are acres of palm-lined beaches, sheltered pools for sunning and swimming, boats you can paddle and boats you can ride out onto the cool lagoon, and casual days and evenings just letting the rest of the world pass you by.

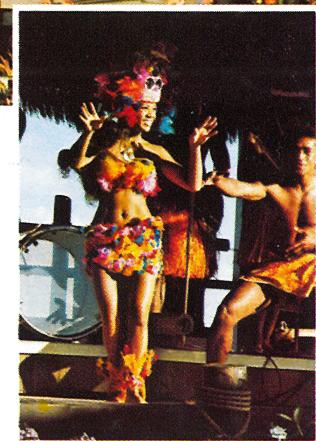

Inside the Great Ceremonial House, the resort's main building, are elegant shops: Polynesian Princess, Robinson Crusoe, Esq., Trader Jack's Grog Hut. There's dining and Polynesian entertainment in the Papeete Bay Verandah . . . torch-lit luaus at water's edge . . . and the relaxed atmosphere of the Barefoot Snack Bar, Tambu Lounge and Captain Cook's Hideaway.

Winding pathways through tropical gardens connect the Polynesian Village's seven "longhouses," where 500 guest rooms look out on gardens, bays, beaches, and the waters of the Seven Seas Lagoon.

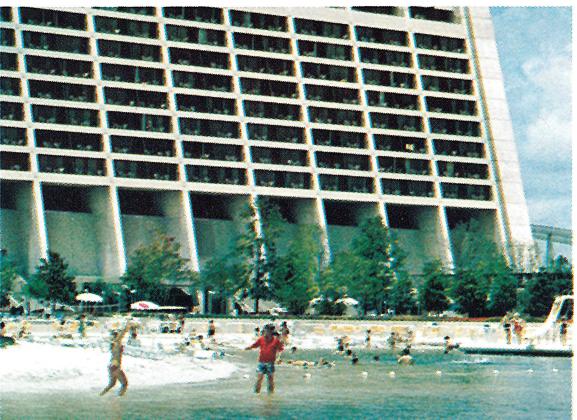

Lush tropical landscaping grows inside the Great Ceremonial House, too. Sunlight and moonlight stream into the central atrium, where waterfalls spill over huge boulders, and wash orchids, ferns and banana trees. Just a few steps away is Papeete Bay, the gateway to a wide array of water recreation.

Authentic South Seas luaus are part of the tropical night scene at the Polynesian Village. And every night, the sea serpents, seals and whales of the Electrical Water Pageant serpentine across the lagoon, between the Polynesian Village and the Contemporary Resort.

The dramatic "A-frame" Towers building dominates the Contemporary Resort. But it's only one feature of this complete vacation resort . . . there's a wide variety of recreation activities, and places just to sit and relax, within minutes of all 1,057 guest rooms.

Monorail trains glide silently through the open nine-story Grand Canyon Concourse, where guests dine and shop and admire the 90-foot floor-to-ceiling mural which gives the Concourse its name. The mural contains 18,000 separate hand-painted, fire-glazed ceramic tiles.

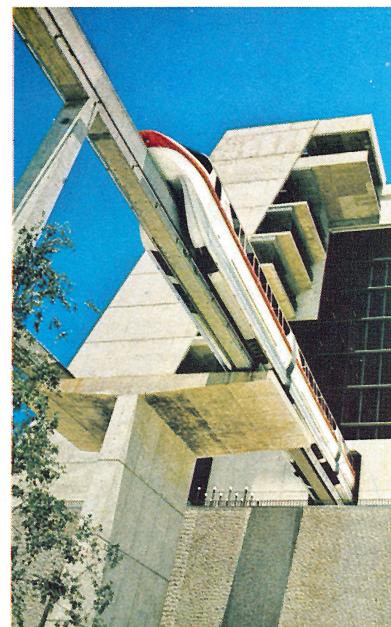

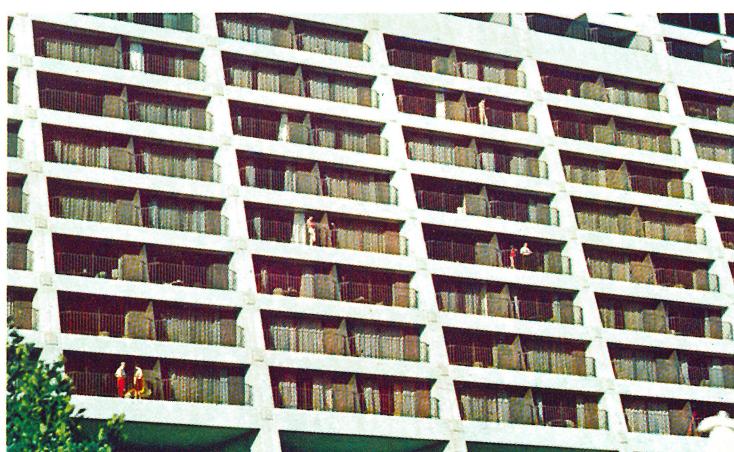

Contemporary Resort

Walt Disney World's Contemporary Resort is one of the world's most dynamic new hotels. It's a place to stay and a place to play . . . where monorail trains glide silently right through the soaring Towers building . . . and beautiful Bay Lake is right outside your room in the two adjacent bayside wings.

Here are complete facilities for conventions, exhibits, meetings and banquets, and a small community of shops and services: The Contemporary Man, Kingdom Jewels, Ltd., The Fantasia Shop, The American Beauty Shoppe, The Olympiad health spa, and many more.

At the Top of the World, guests dine and dance and enjoy top name talent of the entertainment world. On the marina, The Sand Bar awaits vacationers just in off the lake or beach. And when you're ready to visit the Magic Kingdom or other ports of call, just head for the monorail station inside the Grand Canyon Concourse . . . everywhere else in the world is just minutes away.

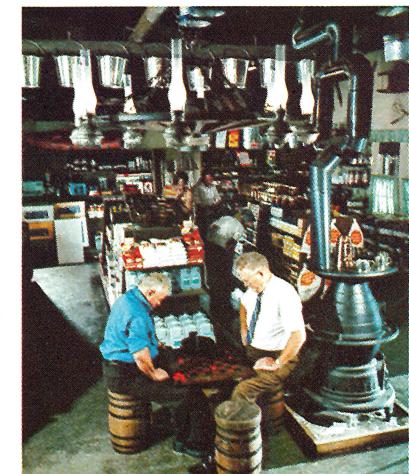

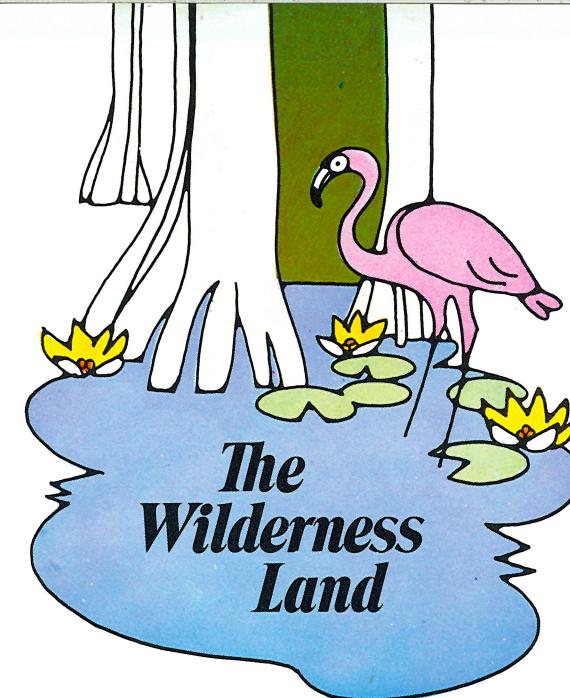

Nine restaurants and lounges and half-a-dozen shops make the Contemporary Resort a "world" of its own. Dramatic views of the silent-running monorail trains are everywhere—indoors and out.

The beautiful flora and fauna of central Florida is all around you at Fort Wilderness, where you can gallop down the trail out of the Tri-Circle-D Ranch . . . forget your cares and worries over a game of checkers at the Trading Post . . . enjoy the old west stage show in Pioneer Hall . . . or ride "The Wilderness Line" train on a scenic journey through the forest.

You're in your own "world", yet the rest of Walt Disney World is just a short journey away by trail or boat.

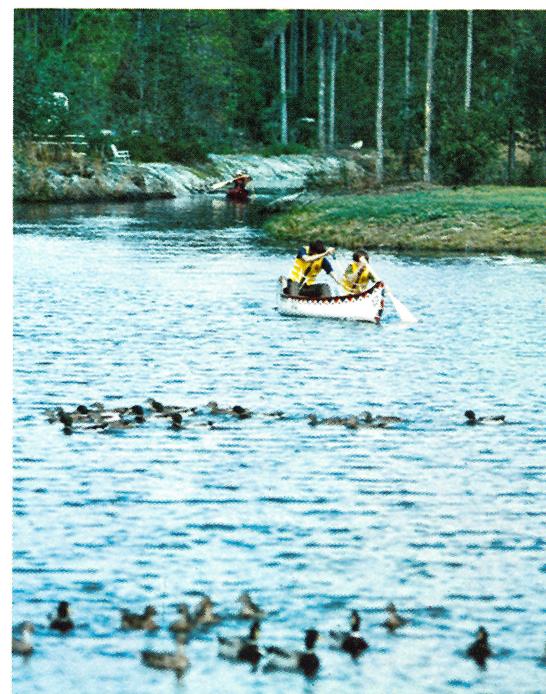

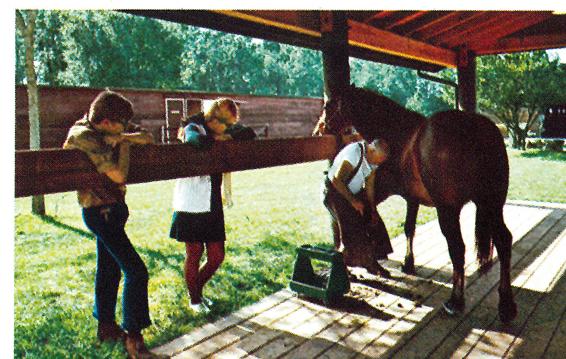

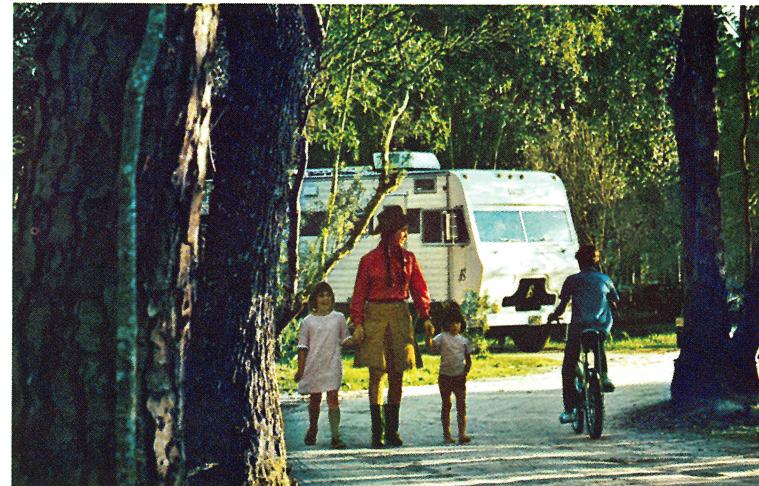

Fort Wilderness

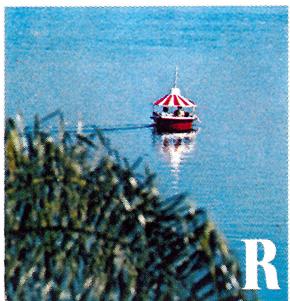

Once it was a land hunted and fished by the Seminole Indians. Now the modern-day pioneer comes bearing his own tent, hauling his trailer or camper, and driving his motor home. But he can still fish and canoe and shoot his bow and arrow in one of the world's most beautiful camping settings—Fort Wilderness.

The natural beauty of a Florida cypress and pine forest has been preserved in this unique campgrounds on the shores of Bay Lake. Each camp site is fully equipped with electrical outlets, charcoal fireplace, water, picnic table and sanitary disposal system. Comfort stations provide private showers, restrooms and laundry facilities. Nearby, at the Trading Post, complete camping and food supplies are available. Right next door is the Tri-Circle-D Ranch, where you can ride by horseback into the surrounding forests. And just around the bend is the Magic Kingdom—reached by complimentary ground and water transportation.

Fort Wilderness will take you back to another age . . . a day when man fished and swam, and watched the trees grow.

By day, the Wilderness Swamp Trail takes explorers deep into a natural cypress swamp. By night, guests join the fun at campfire sing-alongs.

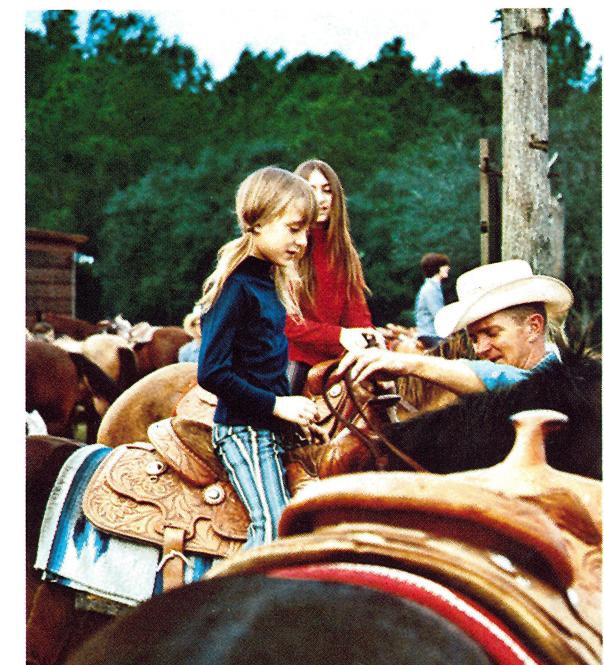

R ecreation

Choose your recreational fun—from horseback riding to poolside sunning—and Walt Disney World beckons. Within Walt Disney World are sports of all sorts, enough to overflow any vacation time—even if there were no Magic Kingdom just across the lake or lagoon.

Among the premier recreational attractions of the Vacation Kingdom are two championship golf courses, where the annual PGA-Walt Disney World Golf Classic is held each year, and a myriad of water sports on 450-acre Bay Lake and its adjoining 250-acre Seven Seas Lagoon. Best of all, you can play just for fun . . . or learn to golf or water ski or hit a tennis ball from skilled professionals. There are plenty of planned and unstructured activities for amateur players and fans, including volleyball, shuffleboard, horseshoes, archery, nature hikes, swimming, badminton, croquet, bicycling, and special programs for children and youths.

Walt Disney World's recreation facilities were designed to make your family holiday not only complete, but a whole new vacation way of life.

Recreation hosts, and top professionals, are available to instruct Walt Disney World guests of all ages in a variety of outdoor activities.

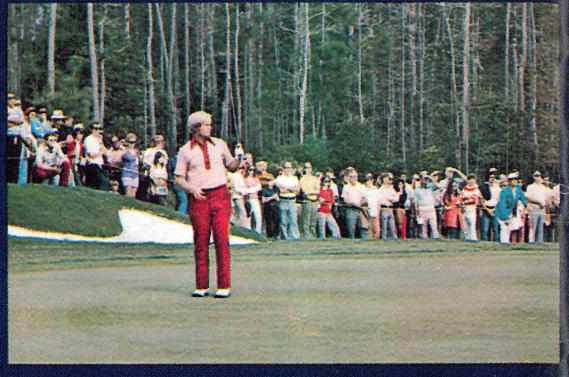

Treasure Island, in the middle of Bay Lake, is filled with tropical birds, botanical beauty, and winding pathways to adventure inspired by the famous Robert Louis Stevenson story.

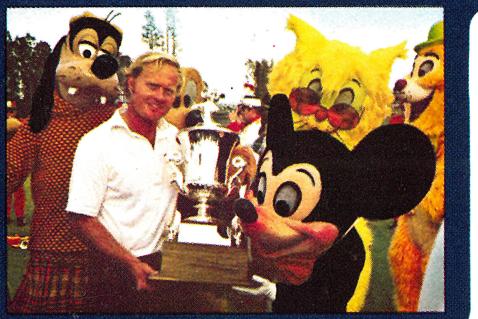

Boats of all sorts are available for rent—with miles of open water to navigate. And there are also quiet pools and streams where you can dip in a fishing line . . . or a toe.

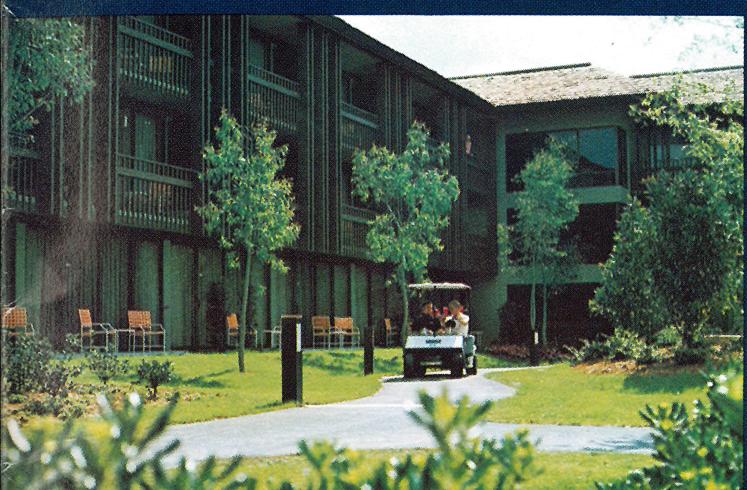

Two championship golf courses, the Palm and Magnolia, are a challenge to any golfer—even Jack Nicklaus, winner of the first three Walt Disney World Golf Classic tournaments, sanctioned here by the PGA.

THE GOLF RESORT HOTEL is surrounded by greens and fairways and beautiful vistas. Even its restaurant and lounge overlook the popular courses—ranked among the country's finest. Complete hotel service, a pro shop and locker room for guests are among the features of this 150 room resort.

Just as every vacation must come to an end, so too must a visit to "The Vacation Kingdom of the World." Many of the experiences guests find here are new . . . but "tired feet" is an old vacation tradition.

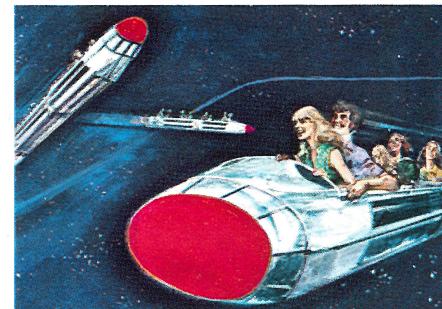

Future

Planning for the future of Walt Disney World is a continuous process that began long before its opening in October, 1971. On the drawing boards and under construction today are a variety of new attractions and facilities, both outside and inside the Magic Kingdom.

Outside, there will soon be a western-style "Settlement" adjacent to Pioneer Hall in the Fort Wilderness area. At Lake Buena Vista, a whole Village shopping center is underway, and a unique "second home" community is taking shape. And one day, the city Walt Disney called EPCOT: Experimental Prototype Community of Tomorrow.

Within the Magic Kingdom, guests will soon find the attractions pictured on this page, and others too. For Walt Disney World is true to Walt Disney's own credo: It will "never be completed, as long as there is imagination left in the world."

Disneyland

When Disneyland opened at Anaheim, California in 1955, it was a brand new concept in family entertainment. “I felt there should be something built, some kind of family park,” Walt Disney said, “where parents and children could have fun—together.”

Today Disneyland is well on its way to hosting its 150,000,000th visitor. It has played host to dozens of kings and queens, princes and princesses, presidents and prime ministers. And it was the foundation, the proving ground, for all that has come after it in Walt Disney World.

Many attractions in the Magic Kingdom at Walt Disney World are similar to those in Disneyland. Many others are unique to each “theme park.” But both have this in common: They are truly happy places, where the young at heart of all ages laugh and play and learn—together.

TAKING WALT DISNEY WORLD HOME WITH YOU IN PICTURES

You'll quickly see that Walt Disney World is a photographer's paradise...not just for the professional but anyone with a camera. The photo tips on the next few pages will assist you in bringing Walt Disney World and the rest of your vacation "back home with you" in pictures. If you need any further advice or assistance, a staff of photo experts is ready to assist you at the GAF Camera Center, Main Street, U.S.A.

1. BEFORE YOU START SHOOTING CHECK YOUR EQUIPMENT

CAMERA:

Is it clean? Check for dirt & old film particles inside... finger prints, water marks on lens outside.

Functioning properly? Check film advance, shutter, other mechanical features.

Batteries fresh? Keep an extra set handy. Clean contact points with rough cloth or eraser.

FILM:

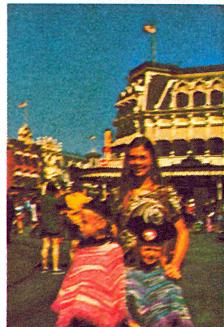

Check the size. Do you want color or black & white? Prints or slides? Indoor film (tungsten) or outdoor?

Is film fresh? Film characteristics change with age and heat. Use before expiration date. Important: Never store film in a hot area such as a car trunk, glove compartment, or in direct sunlight.

Do you have enough? Don't get caught short of film when that "once in a lifetime" picture happens.

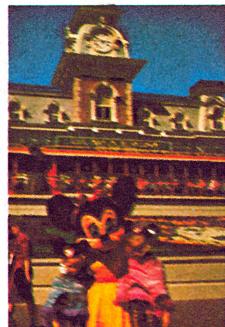

Film in camera? Some people actually forget to load up. When you do load your camera, stay away from intense sunlight if possible.

II. WHILE YOU SHOOT... KEEP THESE THINGS IN MIND:

Hold that camera steady!

Camera movement ruins more pictures than any other single factor. The slower your shutter speed, the steadier the camera must be.

Watch the focus.

If your camera has a non-adjustable lens, stay at least four feet from your subject or it will appear fuzzy . . . "out of focus."

Don't block the lens.
Lens caps, thumbs, camera cases, and other objects spoil a surprising number of pictures.

III. COMPOSE THOSE PICTURES!

Outstanding pictures don't just happen... they are planned. Good composition is neither difficult nor time-consuming. It is fun, though, and it will improve your pictures dramatically.

Let the surroundings tell a story

The first picture could have been shot anywhere including the backyard at home. The second picture, taken in the same area, captures the old-fashioned atmosphere of Main Street, U.S.A.

Watch for unwanted objects

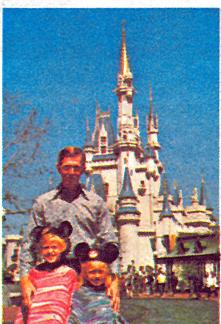

Avoid distracting objects such as trash cans and keep background objects such as trees from "growing" out of people's heads. Also avoid "cutting the subject in two" with your picture frame.

Distance to subject

Bringing the family closer to the camera makes them recognizable yet retains the entire castle in the background.

Action shots better than posed

The thrill of the "Mad Tea Party" and the couple's reaction is a far more exciting picture than a stiff, posed scene.

Some pictures don't need the family

Family pictures are important but a few go a long way. The same picture without the submarine they just cruised on... better for storytelling back home.

Extra pointers for movie fans

Pan Slowly. Panning... moving your camera across a large area to show its entirety... is the biggest problem in home movies. Avoid a continuous blur by panning slowly... or avoid panning unless it's necessary.

Zoom Sparingly. Using a zoom lens on every shot will give you a "seasick" audience. A few zooms per roll are plenty. NEVER ZOOM AND PAN AT THE SAME TIME!

Wind motor after each scene. This way you'll never "run out of gas" in the middle of exciting action. If your camera has an electric drive, use fresh batteries.

Vary scene length. It will give your show a change of pace.

Important!... Don't try to film the entire Jungle Cruise, for example, on a few seconds of film. Remember that a minimum of five full seconds is normally required for any movie scene to be enjoyed and understood.

An Important Word About Flashbulbs

Flashbulbs are prohibited in most indoor attractions in the Magic Kingdom. The Haunted Mansion, Hall of Presidents, Mickey Mouse Revue, Country Bear Jamboree, and other dimly lit shows are virtually impossible to shoot with flash equipment.

Don't try to illuminate large subjects or anything further than 12 feet away. Large or distant objects at night must be shot with time exposure. A flash picture of the Cinderella Castle would require more than 100,000 flashbulbs!

Do follow the instructions of your flash equipment to the letter. It will save you time, money, and countless bad pictures.

IV. WHEN YOU GET BACK HOME:

Develop your film immediately. Remember that film characteristics change with age. The sooner you process the pictures, the sooner you will enjoy them, and the better they will be.

Organize your "show." Both slides and movies should be arranged according to subject... Adventureland, Fantasyland, Polynesian Village Hotel, etc. For example, even if you visited Adventureland several different times during a week's vacation, keep the pictures together. Your "show" will be much more understandable.

Avoid repetition. Fifteen different shots of the Cinderella Castle are fine for a "castle picture collection," but pick out only the cream of the crop for your show. The same goes for family pictures. Include several to show that you were "really there," but save the majority for the family album.
